BACHELORETTE

20 Bachelorette Party Destinations That Are Not Las Vegas

These destinations are perfect for brides looking to do something just a little different.

By Aly Walansky Updated on February 8, 2017

If your friends are hitting several bachelorette getaways this year, you don't want your trip to be just like everyone else's. That may mean staying away from obvious and cliché destinations (we mean you, Las Vegas!) and thinking a little outside the box.

“Beach destinations are always a popular choice for bachelorette parties. When thinking about hot spots, Riviera Maya, Cancun, Cabo San Lucas, and Punta Cana all come to mind for 2017. These locales provide the lively nightlife that many ladies are looking for while also offering group excursions to get out and explore all that the destination has to offer during the day,” says Megan Velez of Destination Weddings Travel Group. “Depending on the bride and her friends’ preferences, the group can spend the day at the spa or hiking nearby trails, only to dance the night away just steps from their room. All-inclusive properties are an especially popular choice, as there’s nothing better than included drinks for a bachelorette party!”

So whether your ideal getaway is fun in the sun or action and adventure, there’s absolutely a vacation perfect for you and your friends.

Palos Verdes, California

Set along the Palos Verdes Peninsula in southern California, Terranea Resort's 102-acre resort offers the ideal weekend spot for bachelorettes to unwind and enjoy luxurious amenities throughout the property. The resort team can even arrange group activities like "Painting by the Sea," kayaking tours, guided coastal hikes, and more. For bachelorette parties looking to get in shape before the wedding, there are several wellness packages. Programs include everything from therapeutic in-room massages, soothing baths, and pre-bedtime facial masks to personalized meditation, yoga, and a boot-camp program.
